

Answer: On 17 June 2015, AU started to use a new version of IndFak (the electronic invoicing system). AU receives IndFak from the Agency for the Modernisation of Public Administration and they have now decided to use a new system called IndFak2.

IndFak2 does not look like the IndFak you know. However, the changes are primarily connected to the user interface and the roles and processes, which the users have today, will not be changed. In addition, the new IndFak2 contains improved search functionality and the IndFak2 website has been adapted to fit mobile phones and tablets.
